

Crip Wisdom for the People Groundbreaking Anthology to Be Published in October

In the groundbreaking new anthology Resistance and Hope: Essays by Disabled People, seventeen multiply marginalized disabled writers, most of them people of color, reflect on activism, hope, and defiance.

In an era of institutionalized cruelty and widespread tolerance for ableism, these activists remind us that the struggle for disability rights and justice has been ongoing, not just arising in response to a hateful presidential administration and its agents. The authors encourage readers to push back against long-established cultural narratives and develop a deeper understanding of how multiple oppressions leave people uniquely vulnerable and excluded from activist spaces.

Edited by Alice Wong, founder of the Disability Visibility Project, Resistance and Hope will transform the way you think about activism and how to contribute to shared struggle.

Praise for Resistance and Hope

“An instructive and empowering anthology on the lived struggles of persons with disabilities. You will finish this book hopeful, optimistic, and ready to rebuild our nation for all to shine.”

—Arjun Singh Sethi, author of American Hate

“In the age of Trump this collection is a revelation, bringing from the margins fresh new ways to look at America, and fresh new ways to look at ourselves.”

—Kevin Powell, author of The Education of Kevin Powell

“Offers us an urgent and needed collection of ‘crip wisdom’ on belonging, community, and self-care that goes far toward showing us how to build the kind of just world we want to live in together.”

—Rosemarie Garland-Thomson, author of Extraordinary Bodies
